Land for Sale.

BeING desirous of changing my residence I have determined to the self my two tracts of land in the county of Cumberland. The mat upon which I reside, two miles below the Court-house, upon the main stage road, contains about six hundred acres, with the instruments of a large and well built two story dwelling house, seen house, and office, with all other houses suitable and convenient for a family. Upon the farm is a good Granary with a Trashic Machine, and several new tobacco barns. A portion of the lands are highly improved by manuring, and is well adapted to the culture of corn, wheat and tobacco, and all kinds of fruit common table construct. The Brook Hill tract lies upon the Appoinantox river, a few miles below the Stony Point Mills and a few miles above the Clement Town Mills, contains about a thousand acressal barge portion of which is bottom land of good quality. This tract is well improved with new framed tobacco houses, a grannry with a machine attached thereto, with many comfortable cabins for negoes. Believing no person will buy without viewing the premiser, a farther description is deemed unnecessary. In my absence, Mr. Samuel Hobson will show the lands to any person who may call Samuel Hobson will show the lands to any person who may cal him. ROBT, HINDERSON.

Moffat's Vegetable Life Pills and Phenix Bitters.

The universal estimation in which the celebrated Life Pills and Phenix Bitters are held, is satisfactorily demonstrated by the increasing demand for them in every State and section of the Union, and by the voluntary testimonials to their remarkable efficacy, which are every where offered. It is not loss from a deeply gratifying confidence that they are the means of extensive and inestimable good among his afflicted fellow creatures, than from interested considerations, that the proprieto of these pre-eminently successful medicines is desirous of keeping them constantly before the public eye. The sale of every additional box and bottle is a guarantee that some persons will be relieved from a greater or less degree of suffering, and be improved in general health; for, in no case of suffering from disease, can they be taken in vain. The proprietor has never known or been informed of an instance in which they have failed to do good. In the most obstinate cases of chronic disease, such as chronic dyspepsia, torpid liver, rheumatism, asthma, nervous and bilious headache, costiveness, piles, general debility, scrofulous swellings and ulcers, scurvy, salt rheum, and all other chronic affections of the organs and membranes, they effect cures with a rapidity and permanency which few persons would theoretically believe, but to which thousands have testified from happy experience. In colds and coughs, which, if neglected, superinduce the most fatal diseases of the lungs, and indeed the viscera in general, these medicines, it taken but for tree or four days, never fail.—Taken at night, they so promate the insensible perspiration, and so relieve the system of febrile action and feculent obstructions, as to produce a most delightful sense of convalezence in the morning; and, though the availant sense of convalezence in the morning and, though the repetition of a suitable dose at the next hour of bed-time will almost invariably effect per mannent relief, without further aid. T small and the latter to large doses of the Life Pilla; and so also hysterical affections, hypocondriacism, resilessness, and very many other varieties of the Neurotical class of diseases, yield to the efficacy of the Phenix Bitters. Full directions for the use of these medicines, and showing their distinctive applicability to different complaints, accompany them; and they can be obtained, wholesele and retail, at 375 Broadway, where numerous certificates of their unparalleled success are always open to inspection.

For additional particulars of the above medicines, see Moffat's "Good Samaritan," a copy of which accompanies the medicines; a copy can also be obtained of the different Agents who have the medicine for sale.

James River Lands for Sale.

BEING unable, in consequence of a paralytic affliction, to give personal attention to my farms, I therefore wish to sell my LANDS where I reside, in the county of Powhatan, about thirty miles above Richmond, immediately above Michaux's ferry, on the Big bend of James river, extending near four miles on the river, nearly opposite to Goochland Court-house, and immediately opposite to Mr. Stanard's farm, called Little Creek, containing about 2,300 acres, with a considerable proportion of valuable low grounds, and a plentiful supply of wood land. This place is remarkably healthy. The buildings consist of a good Dwelling-house, with all necessary out-houses. The land is well adapted to wheat, tobacco, corn, outs and clover. It is now worked as two distinct farms, and will be sold in one entire tract, or divided, as may be most agreeable to the purchasers. A more minute description of the land is deemed unnecessary, as it is presumed every person disposed to purchase will view the premises. All persons disposed to purchase are hereby invited to visit the subscriber, and thereby ascertain the terms, which will be made accommodating.—If desired, the purchaser can be accommodated with 50 or 60 very likely Negroes, and also with the stock, &c., on the farm.

SUITER TO WM. SWITH, Esq., OF CULPEPER. On wednesday, the 24th July, a number of the political friends of this gentleman, learn ng that he reached Smithfield in the morning stage, and that he would remain in the village but one day, determined, in consequence of their approbation of the services he had rendered the State in the Senate of Virginia, to invite him to partake of a supper to be given at the Eagle Hotel.-A committee was accordingly appointed to wait on Mr. Smith, and to express to him the high estimation in which he was held by them and their fellow citizens for his past services, and to request him to partake of a supper to be given at the said Hotel on that evening Mr. mith, having accepted the invitation, Messrs Joel Hol-Smith, having accepted the invitation, and Arthur Smith were leman, Archibald Alkinson, and Arthur Smith were also invited, and favored the company by attending.

The company assembled at 8 o'clock, when Dr Robert Butler was called on to act as President, and Dr. Francis M Boykin as Vice President.

After partisking of an excellent supper prepared for the occasion, the following toasts were given: The Union of the States, and the Rights of the States and of the People: They can only be preserved "by fre-quent recurrence to fundamental principles."

trolling and regulating power over himself, but goes on year after year pulled about by every gale of passion, the sport of circumstances and the slave of impulse-abusing his talents and destroying his per-sonal dignity by brawling through the country in the vain putsuit of suffrages which have so often been denied him. The contrast is indeed well calculated to ar rest attention. It presents at a glance the leading characteristics of the two most prominent competitors for public favor, and exon purely personal grounds, apar-from the great polyadal questions which are involved there is little difficulty in telling what would be the result. It is not denied that there may be individual sympathies with Henry Clay. The weaknesses and indiscretions with Henry Clay. The weaknesses and indiscretions which mark his course perhaps have the effect of giving additional strength to the attachment of a portion of his friends. There is to many minds something peculiarly attractive even in trailly when accompanied by brilliant powers, and friendship often becomes warmer from the necessity of defending or palliating the errors of its object. The operation of this feeling, however, is but partial, and the reflecting part of the people of the work who look on calmity undazyled either his the prethey who look on calmly, undazzled either by the prejudice of mere likings or dislikings, form a better esti-mate of men and of their value for the general good — They see in Martin Van Buren a combination of qualities as rare as they are admirable—they find in him a man "whose blood and judgment are so well commingled," that the most malevolent persecution cannot drive him into error, or make him forget what is due to his country and to himself,—one who has never been ob-trusive, never forced himself upon public notice, never begged or prayed for popular suffrage or appeared to seck for personal advancement,—a courteous gen-tieman, when the storm of party fury raged about his head, and as self poised and self controlled in the hour of the brightest prosperity-as firm and condid in the avowal of political principles as he is mild and graceful in his intercourse both with friends and foct-uniting great talents with irreproachable morals, and presenting a character in all respects eminently calculated to secure esteem, respect and confidence. "The contrast" cannot be otherwise than advantageous to a states. man thus endowed: THE CONTRAST.

"If they wish to re elect Martin Van Buren, they might hereafter dispense with the forms of conventions and elections; for, as General Jackson had appointed his successor, so Mr. Van Buren would appoint his, though he might be Tom Benton, Ames Kendall or the DEVIL." "But an honest difference in opinion, and the full and free exercise of our political privileges consequent upon it, should never be permitted to generate personal hatred, or to infringe upon the courtesies of civilezed life. These who suffer this to occur are fitter objects for our commiseration than resentment. In the course of a public life, already of considerable duration. I have scarcely known one of them who did not, in the end, become the source of constant annoyance to his friends, and a victim to self-tormenting spleen. It gratifies me, but does not surprise me, to find that those you represent think and feel upon this subject as the citizens of the freest and happiest Government upon earth should think and feel; and a regard the testimony which you bear to the spirit in which political controversies have been conducted by myself, as a compliment which I hope I deserve, and upon which I place no ordinary value.

[Martin I an Buren.
What a contrast is presented by these two extracts and how much is it to the advantage of the latter? This contains sentiments worthy of a statesman, a gentleman, a Christian. In it is to be found the true secret of a happy and successful political life. To take a part conscientiously and to act it with spirit and firmness, yet with magnanimity, forbearance, and philosophy, is indeed a high art, but one which can only be practised by an elevated and generous nature. Perhans a more remarkable illustration of it was never exhibited than by the present Chief Magistrate of the country. From early life he has mingled actively in the most exciting politi-cal contests, yet without embittering his heart, or exasperating his temper. He has been exposed to many trials, and has encountered every variety of obstacle, yet without ever yielding one inch of ground, or con-ceding an essential point, he has managed to triumph without oppression, and to overcome without harshness or revenge. Fortunate in almost every thing which he has undertaken he was never made arrogant by success; a final winner in almost every contest, he never put his a man winner in almost every contest, he never put his foot upon the neck of a prostrate foo. The amenity of his temper, the grace of his deportment, the courtesy of his manners, evinced alike to all, have become as proverbial as the distinctness of his opinions as the tenacity with which he acheres is them, are now exisversally acknowledged. These are the qualities which win estern and confidence in the log run, with the great mass of the people, whose calm sense and honest feelings are not vitiated by the passions of heated partisans. They are qualities which gain upon friends, and extort even the reluctant approbation of enemies.

We now proceed to the reverse of the picture. We see a man whom age cannot calm, nor experience mederate. We see him, bending under the weight of years, yet giving vent to passions which would scarrely be pardoned in the heat and flush of youth. We see him, with but few hairs on his head, and those scattered and white, indulging in a malignancy of passion and profanity of language, which would be revolting at all times, but make the heart sick when exhibited by one who stands upon the verge of existence, and feels the last sands of time crumbling under his feet. Does this man think to win the confidence of a moral and intelli-gent community by a course so utterly reckless and inglorious-one so unworthy of his station, his chilities, and his aspirations? Does he think that the shouts of heated partisans, or the obligatory praises of a merce-nary press, can compresse for the want of courtesy, of temper, of dignity, o common sense, displayed in such a course? What a delancholy spectacle, to see an aged man, "broken withhe storms of State," perhaps for the last time dragging the wreck of fame, of talent, and of xistence, through the heat and dust of a political cen-vaes, only to digrace the close of a career whose commencement, als, promised so brightly! But we drop he curtain upn a picture which whold with leasure — Globe.

"No Sunfays in Revolutionary Times."-Mr. Clay. it s stated, rived at Ogdensburgh on Sunday-the day in which he left Oswego, on his way to Canada. The Ogdenshigh Republican in noticing his arrival, records another haracteristic exhibition of the Federal propenity tohan-worship under any and all circumstances -It say: "The perfect ecstacies into which a portion of our hig neighbors were thrown, buffles all description. the first proposed by some to get out the tillage cannot anifire it at once, but this was overruled with some difficulty by the more discreet of the party."
